Ocean thermal energy conversion (OTEC) uses the temperature difference between cooler deep and warmer shallow or surface seawaters to run a heat engine and produce useful work, usually in the form of electricity.

The first law of thermodynamics is a version of the law of conservation of energy, adapted for thermodynamic systems. The law of conservation of energy states that the total energy of an isolated system is constant; energy can be transformed from one form to another, but can be neither created nor destroyed.

Summary In this talk I begin noticing that while ignoring the crucial role of temporal coherence, the formulation of most of nowadays current computer vision recognition tasks leads to tackle a problem that is remarkably more difficult than the one nature has prepared for humans.
